Dear Dad,

By the time you read this I will be on the plane on my way to university. There is so much I should have said to you in person, but this note will have to suffice.

The only home I remember of ours is of course the Wisdom Tree Community. I remember the first time you told Mummy. We loved the fact that your office on M.G. Road was going to be only half an hour away and the airport just 40 mins from us meaning we got to spend even more time with you. Thanks for thinking about us, Dad.

Mummy & Aji loved their morning walks through the wooded areas with its tall trees and manicured lawns. Remember their favorite spot in the shade, where they talked for hours about "the good old days"? While we kids enjoyed the pool and picnic area where you and uncle Raj cooked for Mummy and Auntie on Mother's Day. Thanks for taking care of us, Dad.

The best memory of our apartment that I have is of our courtyard. Though I could never say it in person, I loved the chats we used to have late into the night about school, life and my plans for the future. I also remember the courtyard as the place you spilled wine on Mummy when you were trying to prepare that fancy Valentine's day for her a few years ago. Thanks For making me laugh, Dad.

I loved the cricket coaching the summer after 8th standard at our exclusive club while mummy kept herself busy with her salsa dancing... those pictures from her classes were so funny! It was here where I discovered my love for reading at their wi fi library... but maybe more so my love for squash. Thanks for teaching me, Dad.

Dad, I am going to miss everything, specially you and Mummy but I just wanted to tell you what a great and wise Dad you are to me. Your selflessness and care taught me that more than knowledge and intelligence; it is wisdom that I must give a premium to in my life. Someday when I begin my family, I will always remember your words:

'A house can be built by hands, but a home is truly built by wisdom'

Thank you for the best investment you made in my life.

Lots of Love,
Your Son
